Vietnam forces repel Chinese

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnamese troops defending the Red River valley corridor to Hanoi held their ground Monday against a three-pronged Chinese armored and infantry attack, Hanoi radio said.

It claimed Peking's soldiers were being killed at a rate of 800 a day all along the border front lines.

China's Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping said Monday the 10-day-old conflict might end within 10 days, but analysts in Bangkok and elsewhere expect the Chinese invasion force to first mount an all-out assault against Hanoi's troops.

The official Soviet news media charged that China was massing troops near its border with Laos for an invasion of that Vietnamese-dominated country. The report could not be confirmed.

In a speech in the western Russian city of Minsk, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko reiterated the Kremlin warning to China to pull out of Soviet-allied Vietnam "before it is too late." He said the invasion was "doomed to failure."

A Soviet airlift of military supplies to Hanoi appeared to be continuing. Airport sources in Calcutta, India, said three cargo planes — one Bulgarian and two Soviet — refueled there Sunday and Monday on their way to the Vietnamese capital.

A Voice of Vietnam radio broadcast monitored here claimed Hanoi's troops had killed more than 2,300 Chinese in fighting since Friday at scattered battlefields along the front.

The broadcast said tank-led Chinese infantrymen attacked Vietnamese forces from three directions in the Cam Duong area, south of the provincial capital Lao Cai and about 150 miles northwest of Hanoi.

Cam Duong and Lao Cai, which was reported captured by the Chinese last week, lie in the Red River valley, a strategic water, rail and highway corridor leading to Hanoi. Chinese officials have been quoted as saying, however, they have no plans to try to seize the Vietnamese capital.

The Hanoi broadcast claimed counter-attacking Vietnamese troops killed 1,400 Chinese around Cam Duong, but that fighting was continuing in the area Monday.

China, whose troops are reported to have penetrated as far as 20 miles inside Vietnam, has issued few reports about the progress of the war.

Hanoi claims its troops have killed more than 16,000 Chinese thus far. Intelligence sources here consider the figure inflated. The Vietnamese have not reported their own casualties, and the Chinese have published no casualty figures.

Kyodo news service quoted Chinese sources as saying Peking wants to "punish" Vietnam by destroying at least one Vietnamese army division and military bases and artillery emplacements near the border.

In an interview Monday, Chinese Vice Premier Teng said he "wholeheartedly welcomed" United Nations Security Council proposals calling for a withdrawal of Chinese troops from Vietnam and of Vietnamese troops from Cambodia, Kyodo reported.

Teng added, "We would not make that a bargaining condition," apparently meaning China might withdraw its forces from Vietnam even if Vietnam does not pull out of Cambodia, Kyodo reported.

Eclipse captivates viewers

By PATRICK CONNOLLY
Associated Press Writer

Skywatchers by the thousands shared the awe of watching the sun suddenly go black on Monday in one of nature's spectacles that won't be repeated in North America until the 21st Century.

Animals milled nervously and confused roosters crowed twice as day turned into night in a swath 175 miles wide across the northwestern United States and into Canada.

Street lights controlled by sensors flicked on in Spokane and Olympia, Wash., and elsewhere, as the moon swept between Earth and the bright orange disk of the sun in the last total eclipse to be visible on this continent until the year 2017.

A house cat in Williston, N.D. grew fitful, then got "all hunched up and wouldn't go anywhere until the sun came out," his mistress said.

Eclipse watchers and solar groupies at Williston gathered in snowsuits and parkas in 15-degree temperatures, which fell 6 degrees more when the sun blinked.

"Hooray for the moon!" was the champagne toast among 24 eclipse-chasers high above the Columbia River gorge aboard a Boeing 727 jetliner chartered by the Pacific Science Center in Seattle.

The moon's shadow made landfall shortly after 8 a.m. PST at Agate Beach, Ore., in its eastward march across the sky, arcing as far east as North Dakota before swinging north into Canada.

At Olympia, the Washington state capitol, the clouds broke 10 minutes before total eclipse.

The curious broke out homemade pinhole projectors and makeshift viewers as scientists set up more sophisticated telescopes or conducted experiments in chartered aircraft above the clouds.

But a mattress of clouds several thousand feet thick covered most of the Pacific coast and many had to settle for a televised version.

At Goldendale, Wash., near the Columbia River, more than 1,000 persons had gathered, some from as far away as New England and California.

Sky watchers bag the books to take a look

Students and faculty could not resist the temptation to skip classes Monday morning to observe the last total eclipse of the century as it crossed over the continental United States.

Curiosity overcame the usual devotion to higher learning as a few small groups of students stood outside the Talmage building to look at the eclipse through black microfiche cards. They were rewarded with occasional glimpses as the sun peeked out from behind the clouds. Cries of "there it is" signaled everyone to look upward and view the sun in its various eclipse stages before it returned behind the cloud cover.

The solar eclipse was projected through the telescope in the Eyring Science Center. "The eclipse was not so favorable because of the clouds," said Dr. D. Harold McNamara, professor of physics and astronomy. He said the eclipse came off according to schedule. The eclipse began about 8:09 a.m. and reached its maximum at 9:15 a.m.

As an added benefit, those watching the eclipse were able to see "five sunspots as the moon moved across the sky," McNamara said. There was a fairly active sunspot region on the surface of the sun.

Six students left Provo at midnight Sunday and drove to Montana so they could see the eclipse. They arrived in Lewistown, Mont. at 7:30 a.m. Monday and observed the eclipse from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. Tommy Wade, a freshman from Oklahoma, said, "When we first started watching, it looked like there was a large bite out of the sun. It got bigger and bigger, until there was just a speck left."

He said there was "a purple tint to the ground" and the sky started getting dark and hazy, and within seconds it was "blacked out like midnight.

"You could see stars in the sky, and the street lights came on, and the tower lights at the radio station also came on," he said. The total darkness lasted for 53 seconds and then the process started reversing.

Wade said they had only a small chance of seeing the eclipse because the area was completely surrounded by clouds. However, a small area around the sun was open and they were able to view the natural phenomenon.

Several BYU professors chartered a small Cessna and flew to Montana to observe the eclipse from the ground. Clark Christensen, a professor of physics and astronomy said "it was an awesome event.

"There were high, thin clouds at 23,000 feet," Christensen said. "We were able to see the corona and red prominances sticking out."

Football player chooses Y despite phony Mailgram

By LISA JOHNSON

nuck Ehin, at 17, is a hulking, 6-five, 255 pound football player. He d seem invulnerable, but there are e things against which he cannot nd himself — like illegal recruiting edures.

in, a Layton High tackle and ient of just about every defensive r the state can offer, was victim of uel hoax last week — one that ed him to give up an Alabama larship in favor of playing for . All parties involved are convinBYU had nothing to do with the play, and are anxious to find out originated it.

it Ehin was not the only victim of oax. A similiar trick was played recruit from Boise, Idaho.

hat the hoax involved was a phony gram. It was delivered to Ehin the day he contacted Alabama to tell he'd decided to sign a national r of intent to play for Bear nt's Crimson Tide. In essence, the gram told Ehin because of demic rank" and the limited mber of scholarships," Alabama unable to sign him.

e soft-spoken Ehin was crushed, according to his father, went gh mental anguish as he was forto make a decision between several schools. He had narrowed his down to the University of Utah, aska, BYU, and the University of ado.

e University of Colorado, along Stanford, was also on the second e list of Bret Aitchison, an Idaho player. He had notified those ls that his decision was to go with

CHUCK EHIN

Tennessee, when he received a Mailgram very similar to Ehin's. Aitchkison's Mailgram said Tennessee was no longer interested in the youth, giving the same reasons, almost verbatim, that Ehin's Mailgram had.

But the two incidents had very different outcomes. Aitchison got in touch with the Tennesee recruiters, learned the Mailgram was a fraud and continued with his plans to sign with them, while Alabama lost Ehin to his second choice, BYU.

Ehin's mother thought he was joking when he told her of the Mailgram. The Mailgram was delivered via telephone, then followed by a telegram delivered to the door. Western Union sends Mailgrams via the U.S. mail, and the message is never relayed over the phone. It was also signed "Coach B. Bryant." Bryant signs his letters with his first initial, 'P,' and only outsiders refer to him as 'Bear.' Unfortunately, the Ehins were unaware of that at the time. They were unaware right up to the time when Alabama's Ken Donahue unexpectedly showed up at their door, letter of intent and pen in hand, with no knowledge of the Mailgram.

Matters were further complicated when Cougar Coach LaVell Edwards arrived 15 minutes later. "I guess Christmas doesn't come twice a year," Edwards said as he sat facing Donahue in the Ehin living room. Neither coach could make sense of the matter, but both said their offers were still good.

"I didn't know what to do then," Ehin said. After 30 hours and talks with his father and coaches, Ehin decided on BYU. He said once he thought the Alabama option had been withdrawn, BYU started looking better and better. Finally, Cougar assets won out.

Ehin said if it weren't for the phony Mailgram, he would be heading for Alabama next fall, "but I am happy with my decision." The name, the national exposure and the chance to prove himself with the best drew him to the Tide at first, he said.

Man found innocent in district court trial

By RICHARD BURGSTROM
Universe Staff Writer

"Not guilty" was the verdict given by a Fourth District Court jury, Feb. 23, in the trial of a Springville man charged with theft by deception of a painting on loan to BYU.

Jeffery McIntyre Roberts, 906 E. 440 North, Springville, was accused of fraudulently obtaining "The Marquis of Hertford" from the Harold B. Lee Library last summer. Roberts used a letter that supposedly gave him authority from the owner to take custody of the painting. The owner, Dr. Harold Snow, denied Roberts had such authority.

"Some time had elapsed between the time the defendant had recieved the authorization and the time he attempted to take the painting — nine months," said Michael Esplin, deputy district attorney. In the meantime the owners sent Roberts another letter revoking any authorization he had, but which he contended he had not received at the time of the incident, Esplin said.

"The defense said there was no deceit at the time of the incident," the deputy district attorney said. Of the verdict, Esplin said, "The jury thought it had a doubt as to the original intent of the defendant when he took the painting."

A question still exists, he said, as to how the the original authorization was obtained, "although there may have been no deception at the time of the incident."

Roberts is still charged with four other counts of theft by deception involving two homes and thefts of $5,000 on one count and $6,000 on the other. That trial will be heard before 4th District Judge David Sam.

American arrested in Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Islamic revolutionaries arrested an American, a Belgian and two Britons employed by an oil drilling company, a company spokesman reported. British officials said the men were questioned and then released.

The company spokesman said the four were detained Monday on charges of "plundering the wealth of Iran by charging exorbitant prices."

In another development Hassan Nazih, new director of the National Iranian Oil Co., said Iran would resume oil exports next week but did not say exactly when or in what amounts.

Pope reaffirms abortion stand

POPE JOHN PAUL II

Speaking to members of Movements for Life, an international lay organization strongly opposed to abortion, the pope said the Second Vatican Ecumenical Council of the 1960's, which modernized many aspects of the church, did not hesitate to condemn "everything that is against life itself."

The pope paraphrased remarks of the Ecumenical Council's pastoral constitution dealing with abortion, genocide, euthanasia and suicide.

Governors voice concerns

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's governors, unable to agree on whether to endorse a budget balancing amendment to the Constitution, voiced concern Monday about congressional threats to slash revenue sharing as a big step toward eliminating the federal deficit.

Pressure for a balanced federal budget was the dominant issue at the winter meeting of the National Governors Conference underway a few blocks from the Capitol.

Senate confirms ambassador

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted overwhelmingly Monday to confirm Leonard Woodcock as President Carter's choice to become the first U.S. ambassador to mainland China since 1949.

WOODCOCK

The 82-9 vote followed a brief, unsuccessful floor protest organized by Senate Republicans against Carter's China policies.

Woodcock is to be installed Thursday in Peking, where he has headed the U.S. liaison mission for the past two years. There had been some speculation Senate conservatives might try to block a vote.

Couple charged with murder

CASTLE DALE, Utah (AP) — A 71-year-old Salt Lake City man and a 45-year-old woman were arraigned Monday on two counts of first-degree murder and aggravated robbery in the deaths of two tellers during a bank robbery.

Formally charged were Heber James Norton and Berniece Crosby Craig. They were also given a preliminary hearing date of April 4 in 11th Circuit Court.

The charges against the two said $18,179 was taken Friday afternoon from Zion's First National Bank in Huntington, about six miles north of here.

The two were ordered held without bail pending the hearing.

A man and woman were arrested near Huntington about 2 1/2 hours after the robbery. Highway Patrol troopers said the pair offered no resistance when stopped.

moment of totality, but a muffled cry of awe and joy rippled over the hillside at the small public observatory as the last tiny sliver of sun fell behind the passing moon.

One of those traveling more than 1,000 miles to the snowcovered prairie of northwestern North Dakota was Jim Manning, assistant director of the Morehead Planetarium at Chapel Hill, N.C. He came with a party of eight which drove three days in a van and compact car to get there.

"You feel the awesome power of the laws of nature, how they affect things, and all you can do is sit there and watch," Manning said. "It's a gut feeling of helplessness and you say, 'Look what's going on.' It's a mystical experience."

The shadow crossed the earth at speeds over 3,000 miles an hour, beginning on the West Coast near Portland, Ore., and dissolving over Greenland.

Blind now able to experience eclipse of sun

SEATTLE (AP) — Thanks to Roger Craven's hobby, even the blind can experience the phenomenon of a solar eclipse first-hand.

Craven's hobby is the making of diagrams in Braille. His plastic sheets on Monday's eclipse show the placement of the sun, moon and Earth, as well as two maps of the region covered by the eclipse.

"These are things the rest of us are talking about," he said Sunday. "It's surprising the extent to which the blind want to be included in what others are doing and discussing."

His other projects include a 30-page guide to the Treasures of Tutankhamen exhibit and maps of frequently visited areas such as the Seattle Center and the University of Washington Arboretum.

For the accompanying text, Craven uses a standard Braille template, but each diagram is made by hand, one punch at a time.

"It wasn't part of my work," Craven said. "One day I made a Braille map of the Big Dipper for my supervisor, Don Crawford. I could see the comprehension and pleasure on his face as he ran his fingers over the map."

Rationing plans sent to Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said Monday it would send to Congress Tuesday, about three years late, the legally required standby plans for gasoline rationing and other energy saving measures.

The administration said at first Monday the plans would be announced that day, but official sources said the plans were still being debated late Monday and key congressmen would be consulted before formal submission Tuesday.

Energy sources have said in the past that gasoline rationing plans would probably be based on the assignment of coupons to owners.

Lectures to probe past dictatorships

The psychological motivation behind the establishment of the powerful totalitarian regimes of Hitler, Stalin and Mao will be explored at BYU's Eighth Annual History Week Symposium beginning Wednesday.

"Totalitarian Challenges to Democracy in the Twentieth Century: A Look at the Dictators Hitler, Stalin and Mao" is the title of the series which will feature three internationally respected scholars who have insights into the personalities of the dictators.

Sessions will be in the Varsity Theatre, ELWC, said Dr. Douglas F. Tobler, chairman of the symposium and coordinator of the European Studies in BYU's Center for International and Area Studies.

"In our century, where it was anticipated that democracy and freedom would grow and flourish, totalitarian societies have controlled the lives of more human beings than at any other time in history," Tobler said.

The symposium lecturers will discuss how modern dictators in a variety of societies have been able to gain, consolidate and abuse power.

"All of the dictators promised the common people a Utopia on earth while arrogating virtual total power to themselves," Tobler said.

"By learning about the types of people who have gained control over the masses in the 20th century, we ourselves will be better prepared to recognize potential demagogues and dictators in our own democratic society."

The symposium begins Wednesday at 11 a.m. with a lecture by Dr. Geoffrey C. Cocks, assistant professor of history at Albion College in Michigan. His address is titled, "Hitler, History and the Irrational."

At 1:30 p.m. Dr. Robert McNeal, chairman of the History Department at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, will discuss, "Stalin: Cult, Terror and Socialist Construction."

Thursday's session will open at 11 a.m. with a presentation by Dr. Lowell Dittmer, vice chairman of the Center for Chinese Studies at the University of California at Berkley. His topic is, "Mao Tse-tung and the Maoist Challenge to Democracy."

At 2 p.m., the three guest scholars will form a panel to discuss "Comparing the Dictators: Personalities and Results."

History Week activities will also include a banquet Wednesday at which awards for creative excellence will be issued to undergraduate and graduate history students by the BYU History Department and the Utah State Historical Society.

Security deposits

Bill designed to aid renters

By LARRY WERNER
Universe Staff Writer

The Utah House of Representatives Monday resurrected and passed a bill designed to protect renters' security deposits.

The original bill was defeated last week, but a weaker version was passed Monday in a 41-28 vote.

Rep. Beverly J. White, D-Tooele, said the bill will "help protect college students who have been ripped off by landlords who require a cleaning deposit and then keep it."

Rep. White said she is also a landlord, but thinks renters need protection from landlords who require them to clean apartments before moving and then keep the majority of the cleaning deposit.

Under the provisions of the bill, sponsored by Rep. Kevin Watt, R-Salt Lake City, landlords will be required to state in a written contract if a portion of the deposit is non-refundable. They will also have to explain why any portion of the deposit money is retained.

Rep. Lee Farnsworth, R-Provo, also supported the bill, saying that he represents many students who rent as well as landlords and the law should be designed to protect the renters as well as the landlords.

Rep. Sherman D. Harmer, Jr., R-Salt Lake City, said he opposed the bill because it "limits the extent to which the property owner can collect for damages to the amount of the security deposit."

Harmer was quoted last week as saying renters "should not have equal rights" with landlords because a landlord has invested capital.

Plane passengers pursue eclipse

SEATTLE (AP) - Like circus acrobats, eclipse-chasers aboard a jet airplane observed the darkening of the sun Monday with a hectic ritual called "seat-changing."

The 94 passengers sat six abreast on the Boeing 727, with an aisle up the middle. The plane sailed along at 400 miles an hour 35,000 feet over the ground.

When the total eclipse began, the passengers sprang into action, literally, jumping from seat to seat for a view.

It was all under the direction of Dennis Schatz, astronomy education director at the Pacific Science Center in Seattle, which chartered the Alaska Airlines plane.

Schatz acted more like a gym instructor, shouting "Change seats!" so everybody could have a 25-second view during the minute and a half of totality. When he signaled, some passengers jostled for positions at windows facing the eclipse and others relinquished the windows and went to the end of the line.

The pilot, Capt. Warren Perry of Enumclaw, did all he could to chase the fading sun through the sky. He also turned and banked the craft sharply to give everyone the best view.

The skies were crowded along the 175-mile wide eclipse shadow in Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and North Dakota, but the Federal Aviation Administration reported no major problems.

CDBG funds

Public input asked

The last opportunity for public comment on the spending of Community Development Block Grant funds totalling $1.1 million will be today during the Provo City Commission meeting at 7:30 p.m.

"The public's suggestions have been formed into a recommendation by the CDBG select committee," said Leland Gamette, Provo City administrative assistant. "The recommendation will be presented to the commission during the meeting."

The recommendations concern Provo's spending of the $1.1 million allocated by the Department of Housing and Urban Developement.

The city commission will take official action on the committee's recommendation, Gamette said.

"They will review the recommendation in public and decide whether to change the recommendation or approve it as is," Gamette said.

Last week the select committee evaluated and assigned priorities to the citizen's suggestion. The top priority program is the replacement of undersized waterlines.

Among other suggestions was the request by several citizens to return the funds to the federal government. The committee earlier rejected this suggestion.

"Some people feel that we should send the money back, but the majority doesn't feel that way," Provo City Commissioner J. Earl Wignall said.

"I am not for federal funds with strings attached," Commissioner Anagene Meecham said earlier. "We as a city need the money to upgrade waterlines; without it we would have to raise taxes."

"We use the money for worthwhile projects for the citizens; I think that is realistic," she said.

Orem woman reports rape

A 19-year-old Orem woman reported to Provo Police that she was raped in a southwest Provo apartment early Saturday by two men, believed to be Salt Lake City residents.

Provo Police Detective David Adamson said the woman told police the rape occurred after a date Friday night.

"She said she was held in the apartment from about 1 a.m. to 6 a.m. by her escort and two other men," Adamson said. She said during this time the alleged rape occurred.

Adamson said the woman reportedly escaped from the apartment and ran to a nearby business to call some friends in Orem.

"Her friends came to pick her up," he said, "and she called the police."

The men, believed to be in their 20s, are being sought for questioning, police said.

Winter thaws cause chuckholes

Instead of cursing city hall the next time your car hits one of the infinite chuckholes found in Provo, blame Utah's winter conditions.

The main reason Utah's roads have become so unbearable is the unique climate.

Jack Zerbies, Provo city engineer, said if the weather were even a little bit colder, the roads would not be so bad.

He said it is the "freeze-thaw cycle" which causes so many chuckholes.

"Our roads are really buckling up," said Max Ford, Provo superintendent of streets. He added it will probably be April before the roads can be permanently repaired, because they must dry out before they can be taken care of.

"This winter has been worse than most," Zerbies said. "The constant freeze at night and thaw in the daytime really breaks them up."

Although the roads cannot be permanently fixed until spring, the road crews are kept busy trying to keep them in driveable condition. "We're constantly patrolling the roads," Ford said.

The crews have used so much of the patching mix used to repair the chuckholes, there may not be enough to last through the rest of the winter, he said. "We've used so much of the temporary mix that I only have five tons left in the stock pile."

Most of the companies that supply the mix have already run out of it, but Ford said he plans to try to obtain more from companies in Salt Lake City. If he cannot obtain any more, he said he will have to "start filling them with ordinary gravel."

Cougars finish 2nd at WAC indoor meet

Winning is the name of the game and when you find yourself shut out of the winners circle both days of the conference championship meet you have to settle for second best.

So it was for BYU, after a somewhat disappointing weekend at the Western Athletic Conference indoor track and field championships at Pocatello.

Despite the elusive quality of first place finishes, the Cougars combined a strong overall effort to wrap up second place in the team competition. Nevertheless, BYU's two-day 131 point total fell far short of Texas-El Paso's meet record setting finish of 177 points. UTEP, defending NCAA indoor track champions, broke their own meet record of 166 points set in last year's WAC championships. New Mexico came away with a third place finish of 70 points.

The Cougars weren't without their moments of glory however, placing competitors in the top three spots in nine of the meet's 12 events.

Head coach Clarence Robison praised the efforts of BYU distance man Ben Hart in the three-mile run. Hart, who qualified for NCAA competition with a run of 13:25.06, had to settle for a second place finish behind UTEP's Mike Musyoki who smashed the conference mark by nearly six seconds with a sizzling run of 13:21.24.

Robison said that Hart's time ranks high nationally, emphasizing that his runner "stayed right with Musyoki until the last 100 yards" of the race.

Robison also mentioned Hamblin's second place time of 1:11.76 in the 600-yard run and praised the efforts of freshman Brad Jackson.

BYU made a big showing in the 60-yard hurdles, grabbing the No. 2, 3, and 4 spots behind Fatwell Kimiayo's WAC record breaking 7.35. Lloyd Jones was the top Cougar in the event with a time of 7.45. Rafael Echavarria, 7.55; and Alan Herbison, 7.65, took the third and fourth positions. Interestingly, all three Cougar placers ran times under the previous meet record. The record had stood since 1971, indicating the speed of the race.

Jackson was the second place finisher in the 60-yard dash in a time of 6.45, and the distance medley relay team of Zenos Moreno, Doug Padilla, Jay Woods and Jackson earned NCAA qualification and a second place medal with a time of 9:49.01.

Kim Nielson, in a bit of a letdown, settled for a leap of 6-11 and a second place in the high jump.

4 Y baseball players earn all-tourney honors

Four Cougars were named to the University of Nevada-Las Vegas All-Tournament baseball team this weekend, including relief pitcher Rob Blyth, as the Cougars took a second place finish to UNLV.

Third baseman Murphy Sua, catcher Len Tsuhako and outfielder Jeff Burton were named to the All-Tournament team, along with Blyth, whose two wins put him a game above the tournament's other pitchers.

Blyth's tandem victories came in the two games against UC Irvine, when he relieved Tyler Steinbach and Axle Hardy. "He's one of the premier relief pitchers in the country," Cougar Coach Gary Pullins said. "He comes out of the bullpen and shuts them down."

Pullins said he was also pleased with the pitching of Bill Pittson, who was responsible for the other Cougar win, and Hardy, Tom Morris and Greg Petersen. "We've known all along that we have an excellent pitching staff, but now they're just starting to gel," he said.

The Cougars won three of their five games in the tournament, dropping their first to Oklahoma State, 5-7, and winning the second against Irvine 10-9. The third saw UNLV edge BYU, 3-4. The fourth and fifth were BYU victories over Irvine, 4-3, and OSU, 13-6.

"We won two of those games on base hits by Burton and Mark Adamaic in the last inning," Pullins said. "The guys really pulled for each other. They're starting to get the feeling of team unity."

BYU offense was also highlighted by team speed, according to Pullins. The Cougars stole seven tournament bases, three attributed to Marc Thomas and three more to Younger, who pilfered all three bases in the same game.

The bat of Murphy Sua prevailed as he went 10 for 18, hitting a perfect four for four in a bout with Irvine. He also hammered out three of the Cougars' four homeruns.

Cat lacrosse team begins spring season

The snow may still blanket the fields, but one Cougar spring team isn't waiting for it to clear.

The Cougar Lacrosse team takes off Wednesday for a season-opening three game series that may prove the toughest of the entire season.

The team, under player-coach Gordie Dickens, will take on San Diego State, UCLA, and U.S.C. on successive days. Despite the difficult early season test, Dicken's expectations for the team in this series, and the season, are high, if the Cats can continue to play the fundamentally sound game they have shown in recent practice.

Lacrosse is a "goal game" (hockey, soccer) similiar to field hockey, the difference being that the stick used has a net at the end for the purpose of catching and throwing the ball in the air, as opposed to batting it along the ground.

Fundamentals in lacrosse include being able to catch and throw, although more often than not it involves the ability to do both under great pressure.

Oldest game

Lacrosse is also the oldest native game on the North American continuent. Originated by the Iroquois and Algonquian Indians some 400 years ago, the game was used mainly as a substitute for war in settling such issues as tribal and land disputes, such as which chief's son would win the hand of another chief's daughter.

Thousands would be involved in games lasting days. Serious injury and death, though not common, did occur, and in many tribes a young brave's performance in a game was the basis for earning his feathers.

The modern game is slightly more civilized than when played by the Indians. Players are protected by a few rules and fewer pads. But the action continues to be fast and scores high. Any given game will see a goal scored on an average of every two to three minutes. Lacrosse combines a fast up and down field play seen on a basketball court, the contact of football, and the highest scoring of any of the goal games to gain spectator appeal wherever it is introduced.

Coach Dickens feels without question that the key point in the success of this years' team will be the goal tending of Eric Vogelsberg, a freshman from Massapequa, New York, who was given the job only six weeks ago.

After an excellent high school career, Eric is viewed as being able to hold down his position well. But the defense, anchored by Tom Harris, Greg Frerhofner, and Kim Anderson doesn't intend to make Eric have to stop many shots.

Attack line

Offensively, the Cougars have seen excellent play from the attack line consisting of Todd Hovis, Mike Schaertl, and Dave Heath, who led the team in scoring as a freshman with 36 goals.

In the ground between defense and attack lie the midfielders, a unit that must show skill both as offensive players and defensemen, depending on where the ball is. The middies' role can change from defensemen to goal scorer in a matter of seconds. The Cougars are well stocked at this position, with three lines of such caliber that any line could start on any given day.

In this series, the Cougars will go with a starting three of Dickens, Blaine Vandenberghe and Joe Freiberg. Other midfield standouts include returnees Steve Cornia, Brain Davis, Scott Benjamin, and Mike Duke. Charley Nye, Hal Hanson and Bruce Call are newcomers to the team with little to no experience prior to joining the program here, yet each has to his credit an excellent fall season, and have proven themselves in practice.

The '79 schedule will prove to be all the Cougars can handle. Seven of the nine games will be played on the road. After a week off from play, the team takes to the road again to Ft. Collins, Colo. with games against Colorado State and Western State on March 16th and 17th. The team will not see the friendly confines of their Stover Field home until a March 24th shootout with the University of Utah.

The reason for the difficulty in scheduling, Dickens claims, is "all of the western areas that have taken up lacrosse; Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle — Portland, Denver, and Phoenix all have a dozen teams right in the area. They don't have to travel to get competition so it is hard to ask them to take time and expense to come to Utah."

Despite the disadvantage of being the visiting team for most of the year, team hopes are high. "Man for man I think we are more talented than any team we've had since I've been here," claims Dickens. "How well we can bring it together as a team will be the real issue. If we do it, we'll be awful tough to beat."

Dickens will find out just how good his team is after playing the top competition in Southern California this week.

Hoax baffles

staff at BYU, and the fact that I would be able to play sooner and more frequently, decided it," he said.

The story had a happy ending after all, but the middle was not too rosy. Ehin went through what he said was one of the worst times of his life after receiving the rejecting Mailgram. "No one should be forced to go through the mental wringer Chuck did," his father said.

Aitchison's mother agreed that the torture the fraud gave her son was terrible. "I was right there when he got the phone call," she said. "I saw his whole world fall out from under him. He was lucky though, his ordeal lasted only fifteen minutes. The Utah boy's lasted almost a week."

The mystery still remains as to who sent the Mailgrams, and what will happen to them if caught. The fraud is a federal offense, and, if the guilty party were a school vying for top athletes' talents, it would face severe NCAA action.

Only by tracing the Mailgrams to the calls that ordered them can any evidence be found, but that does not necessarily provide the answer. Each Mailgram was processed through an office in New Jersey, but many Mailgrams coming from the West are processed through New Jersey as western lines are full, according to Western Union officials. One can only look at the evidence provided and speculate.

Bob Martin

Album 'new experience' for law student

By MARCI JUDD
Universe Staff Writer

Like any other law student, Bob artin spends a good share of his time his carrel in the law building absorb- g book after book, case after case, id detail after detail.

Unless you'd seen him at Concerts mpromptu or at a recent ward social, u'd probably never guess that Mar- is an entertainer — not a lawyer — heart, and has just released his first cord album.

"Ever since I was just a kid," says e first year law student, "I've eamed of making a record. It's just mething that's in my guts, and as a le, I follow all my gut feelings."

Bob decided one day last year that it s time to make this dream a reality, d called Marvin Payne, local ngwriter and musician, who agreed be his adviser for an independent rning experience Martin was plann- with the BYU Honors Program.

Payne was under the impression at Martin would just be "hanging ound the studio for a while," to learn e technical aspects of the recording ocess. "But after a very short time," d Payne, "Bob said something that ared me to death. He said he had ne songs he wanted to record."

When Payne finally consented to let b play for him he was "very pleasan- surprised" at the outcome.

"He played this dynamite song," d Payne, "and from then on we all really involved and eager."

Martin sang more songs for Payne, and Payne continued to like them. Before long there were enough "dynamite" songs to fill an album, which turned out to be the next phase of Martin's project.

Bob sat down with Marvin and chose 12 out of 20 songs to include on his album, "Our Daddy's Plymouth." He followed these songs from the beginning stages to the eventual production of the album, working closely with his producers, Payne and Guy Randle at Rosewood Recording Studio.

"Bob had a keen interest in being actively involved in every step of the production," recalled Payne, "which resulted in a very close relationship between him and us as his producers."

For his work on the album, Bob was awarded the distinction of being named University Scholar by the BYU Honors Program, a program set up to recognize outstanding scholastic or creative achievements by undergraduate students.

Bob says his heart really is in music, and he's not sure yet why he's in law school. "Maybe it's because my mom is such a dreamer and my dad's so practical. Some of it must have rubbed off. "Besides, I'll probably want to get into something a little more 'gray flannel suitish' after I sing for awhile."

Martin admits that his style is much like that of James Taylor. "He is in a position where he can really influence people with his music. That's where I'd like to be."

Marvin Payne says though Martin isn't a "flashy" performer, he plays music that pleases a variety of audiences.

"Bob's songs aren't very dramatic, but they display a kind of subtle sophistication in the messages they contain. I expect his record will develop a hard core bunch of Bob Martin fans." Payne describes Martin's songs as "pretty much in the same world as mine."

Bob admits he still doesn't know what he wants to be "when he grows up."

"I'm doing this now and enjoying it, and I'll probably keep doing it as long as I do enjoy it."

Y professor gets award for work on bald eagles

Dr. Joseph R. Murphy, professor of zoology, has been named Eagle Person of the Year by Eagle Valley Environmentalists for his efforts and study concerning the status of bald eagles.

"This award goes to one who has done significant research on behalf of bald eagles," Murphy said. "Bald Eagle Days" are held in the midwest each year, during which environmentalists convene to discuss research being done on the bald eagles in North America. Murphy, who has attended these meeting for several years, recently returned from a conference in St. Louis, where "two days of intensive reports were made on the status of the eagles and their nesting and wintering habits," he said.

Murphy has done research on the wintering populations of eagles in Utah. This includes studying their eating habits, usual length of stay, and determining where they originate.

Law panel discusses client-lawyer relations

Law professors and practitioners discussed the lawyer's responsibilities to his client in the Law Building Monday.

The discussion was sponsored by the Association of Women Law Students and the panel included Carl S. Hawkins, BYU professor of law; John Cibinic, visiting professor from George Washington University; F. Robert Bayle, Salt Lake City lawyer; and Phil Hansen, former Attorney General for the state of Utah.

"Never turn out a client, he might go to a competitor," joked Cibinic. He said one of the main problems lawyers face is overscheduling. Another problem arises when lawyers accept clients with problems they are not qualified to handle.

Phil Hansen, former state attorney general responds to questions with F. Robert Bayle.

Cibinic said the clients ought to make decisions concerning a case and not the lawyer. "After all it's the client and not the lawyer who is going to get billed."

"I don't think lawyers try to add to the bill purposely," Cibinic said. "If allowed, a lawyer will continue with a case until he solves it, creating more costs for the client."

Hansen disagreed, saying, "Letting a client tell the lawyer how to run a case is like letting a patient tell the doctor how to operate."

The panel also discussed the problem of what a lawyer owes his client. Although the panel disagreed in many areas, they concluded that every lawyer should do as much for his client as is legally possible.

Elder Featherstone to speak today

Elder Vaughn J. Featherstone, a member of the LDS Church's First Quorum of the Seventy, will speak at the devotional assembly today.

The assembly will begin at 10 a.m. in the Marriott Center and music will be provided by the Women's Chorus under the direction of Colleen Harris.

The talk will be broadcast live on KBYU-FM radio, and telecast tonight at 8 on KBYU-TV, Channel 11. The assembly will also be telecast Sunday at 9 p.m.

Elder Featherstone served as a counselor in the Presiding Bishopric of the Church for four and a half years prior to being called as a Seventy in October 1976. He is presently a managing director of the Missionary Department.

A native of Stockton, Utah, Elder Featherstone moved to Salt Lake City with his family and attended South High School where he was elected junior and senior class president and school historian. He also played football for three years and was on the track team for two years.

Applications due for scholarships

By JORGE TEJEDA
Universe Staff Writer

Thursday is the application deadline for students who are in good academic standing, who have special talents or financial need, and who want to receive help from the BYU Scholarship Department.

JoAnn Perry, scholarship coordinator for BYU, said the LDS Church, various companies and individuals have contributed money to BYU to be used for scholarships "to reward the ones who have done well and to assist those who are in financial need."

The largest group of scholarships are given on the basis of grades, but there are many scholarships given according to criteria set by the donors, such as college major, financial need, year in school, home state and others, Miss Perry said.

Scholarships based on grade point average have students competing for them with a GPA of 3.7 or better, she said. If there is financial need, a grant may be added to the scholarship.

"There are over 150 scholarships restricted to students in certain majors. For example, awards are given to students in education, art, dance, drama, music, nursing, English, German, speech, communications, all fields of engineering, pre-med, the agricultural and biological sciences, math, chemistry, physics, family living and many more," Miss Perry said.

Although GPA is evaluated in awarding these scholarships, financial need is also considered. In order to be considered on the basis of financial need, a special form should be filled out, she added.

While many scholarships are given through the Financial Aids Office, some are only available through the campus departments, which set their own requirements and select the students who will receive the awards, Miss Perry said.

"Of those students who apply at the Financial Aids Office, about 80 percent of them receive scholarships," she added. "About 25 percent of all BYU students get scholarships."

If a student accepts financial assistance, he is expected to meet certain requirements. He must complete a minimum of 30 semester hours over Fall and Winter semesters or seven credit hours during each Spring and Summer term, Miss Perry said. She said sometimes students who qualify do not apply.

Red Cross needs blood donations

The ROTC is out to get your blood.

The American Red Cross, the Army ROTC and Sponsor Corps are conducting a blood drive today through Friday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on the third floor EWLC (above the ballroom). Donated blood will go to the Red Cross working with Utah Valley Hospital or donors may designate a recipient.

Those wishing to donate should eat at least four hours prior to giving blood and can plan on spending about an hour at the center, Miss Findley said.

A goal of 800 pints has been set for this week's blood drive. Recent drives here netted 800 pints and 751 pints.
